

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A compact chemical reactor has a first substrate.
A catalyst layer is provided on an inner surface of a groove formed in a first surface of the first substrate.

5 A second substrate, in which a concave portion to receive a portion of the catalyst layer is formed on a surface opposite to the first surface of the substrate, contacts the first substrate on the opposite surface.